FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE, JULY 28.

WHITEHALL, July 28.

DUBLIN-CASTLE, July 18, 1789.
Letters Patent have been passed under the Great Seal of this Kingdom, granting the office of his Majesty's Post-Master General of Ireland to the Right Honourable Charles Lord Loftus, and the Right Honourable Charles Earl of Bellamont, K. B.

Letters Patent have also been passed, constituting and appointing Edward Tighe, Esq. Sir Frederick Flood, Bart. Charles Henry Coote and John Reilly, Esqrs. together with the Auditor of Imprest Accounts for the time being, to be his Majesty's Commissioners of Extraordinary and Imprest Accounts.

Letters Patent have also been passed, constituting and appointing Peter Holmes, Richard Townsend Herbert, Edward Fitzgerald, Samuel Hayes, and George Rawson, Esqrs. to be his Majesty's Commissioners for the stamping and marking vellum, parchment, and paper, and for managing the duties thereupon.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 15.
Intelligence was received here the 11th instant from Ruichuck, that an Officer with the Imperial commands had arrived there on the 5th, when the Grand Vizir, Sufai Pathaw, was deposed from that office, and put under arrest; and that his papers were sealed up by the Janissary Aga, acting as Kaimacham, or locum tenens of Hassan Pathaw, of Vidin, now promoted to the Vizirate.

MADRID, July 6.
Her Catholic Majesty was safely delivered of a Princess this evening at six o'clock. The two first names given to her Royal Highness in baptism were Maria-Isabella.

VIENNA, July 15.
The Emperor had no return of his fever either on Saturday or Sunday last, and his Majesty advances in his recovery.

A Courier arrived here yesterday evening, with the intelligence that the Turks having evacuated Gradiska in the night of the 8th of this month, the Austrian Army took possession of that fortress on the following morning.

PARIS, July 23.
On Tuesday last the King received the Foreign Ministers as usual at Versailles, when M. de Montmorin attended, and every thing was quiet in that quarter. M. de la Luzerne has resumed the employment from which he had been removed; but M. Necker is not yet arrived.

This city has continued, under the protection of the militia, perfectly free from all kind of tumult till yesterday evening, when two executions took place in the Place de Greve. One of the unfortunate persons who suffered was M. de Foulon, who had spread the report of his death, and retired to his house in the country; but, being discovered, he was forcibly brought to Paris. He was first hanged, his head was then cut off, and carried upon a pole to meet his son-in-law, M. Berthier, Intendant of Paris, whose death was also decided upon, and who had been seized at Paris, late yesterday evening, escorted by sixteen hundred persons, and, after a short examination, which was interrupted by the clamours of the populace, suffered a similar fate, notwithstanding the Marquis de la Fayette endeavoured to persuade the people to save his life.

It is reported that the Queen, accompanied by the Dauphin, is to come to Paris to-morrow, in order to go to the church of Notre-Dame.

The accounts from Brittany mention, that several regiments in different parts of that Province laid down their arms, upon being ordered out to quell disturbances; and that at Havre-de-Grace the whole Garrison, upon receiving the news of what had happened at Paris, marched out, and left the fort and its appendages to the Bourgeoisie, who immediately took possession of it.

The appearance of the crops every where promises a plentiful harvest, and removes the apprehensions that had become so alarming on account of the scarcity of grain.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY, July 27.
TOBACCO BILL.

Their Lordships finished hearing the evidence of Mr Pottlethwaite; examined M^r. Haler and Ludlow against the said bill, and afterwards adjourned till to-morrow.

TUESDAY, July 28.
The order of the day was read for the renewal of the evidence on the Tobacco bill.

Mr Eddowes, a tobacco manufacturer of Chester, was examined; and after him, Mr Chandler, a Gloucester manufacturer.

The evidence being closed, and the Counsel having quitted the bar,

The Duke of Richmond rose, and moved, that this bill be read a second time to-morrow, which was agreed to.

Lord Kinnaird mentioned the Westminster annuity bill as standing for this day; but, as it was now late, he would move that it be read a second time to-morrow.

The Lord Chancellor suggested Thursday as the preferable day, to which Lord Kinnaird assented.

Soon after seven o'clock the house adjourned till to-morrow.

PARISIAN INTELLIGENCE.

REVOLUTION IN FRANCE.

Advices from Cherbourg, by the Phoenix packet, just arrived at Southampton, say, that on Thursday last, vast crowds of a most formidable banditti poured in from the country, on pretence of scarcity of corn.

In their way, they laid waste many gentlemen's houses, and not a granary escaped their depredations.

They laid open the prisons, and set the felons, &c. free; gutted and pillaged the principal houses, and otherwise destroyed, what they could not conveniently carry off.

Notwithstanding money was thrown from the windows among them, and bread offered at a penny a pound, all did not avail.

The Mayor's house did not escape their ravage, and so unmerciful were they, that they broke his carriage to pieces, threw it over the Quay, and cut the flesh off the horses bones with hatchets.

As the soldiers took no active part, the inhabitants defended themselves by the use of their property. In consequence of which, the same evening and next morning, about 120 were taken and confined either aboard the ships in the harbour, Fort Royal, or in the prisons in the town.

Foreigners and natives, for personal security, were then obliged to mount the National Colours in their hats, composed of white, red, and blue ribbons, and the general cry was "Liberty, and an English Constitution!"

Intemperance prevails, so much amongst the Patriots, that two bottles of wine each, in bumpers before breakfast, is common!

The Customhouse was radically rammaged, and all books and records destroyed.

None were committed but those who had effects found on them, which were proved to be the property of others; which, was, without further ceremony, deemed ample conviction. In consequence of which, numbers were instantly hanged on!

The report of the death of M^r. Foulon and Berthier is now authenticated. The first had counselled the King to declare the nation in a bankrupt state.

Berthier was son-in-law to Foulon, and had amassed considerable quantities of corn for the supply of the troops.

Foulon was dragged into Paris by the peasants, who found him about six leagues distant from the town; he was in an open cart with his hands tied behind him, and his mouth gagged.

As soon as he arrived at the Hotel de Ville, Monsieur Bailly and La Fayette put some questions to him; while the concourse of people all around waited with such impatience that boded the unfortunate prisoner no mercy.

They would not wait for any decision on his conduct; but forcing open the doors of the Hotel de Ville, and rushing up the stair-case, tore away the unfortunate prisoner, and carried him to the Place de Greve, there fixing a cord round his neck, they drew him up to a post; but, as he was nearly strangled, the cord broke, and he was dashed upon the pavement! Again they fixed a cord about his neck, and again drew him up—and then, before he was entirely dead, let him down, and, with an axe, after three different attempts, chopped off his head.

The son-in-law, Sieur Berthier de Savigney, who was now found, was fished in the same barbarous manner.—But that something still further might not be wanting to the scene, they made the son-in-law kiss the bleeding heart of his father, which they tore out before his face. Then putting both their heads upon poles, they carried them round the city by torch light.

Monsieur Berthier de Savigney was Intendant of Paris, and a man possessed of 16,000 l. Sterling a year. He was stopped by a cabinet-maker at Compeigne, who refused 5000 l. to let him get off. The noble fellow refused the bribe with indignation.

M. de Foulon was a Cabinet Minister, and had been nominated, conjunctively with Marshal de Broglie, to the war department. The mob had sought after him at the time of the late riots in Paris; and, to evade his vigilance, his friends had given out that he had died suddenly of an apoplexy. He was in his 75th year.

Immediately after his execution, the populace cut all his clothes to pieces, as patriotic relics. He was hung with a bunch of hay in his mouth, alluding to an expression he made use of a few days since, that "the Parisians must be taught to eat hay."

The Permanent Committee at the Hotel de Ville continues to sit night and day. The prisons are full of spies and traitors, and every moment fresh ones are brought in.

The Marquis de Lambert was caught on the Pont-Royal, in the disguise of a servant, on Thursday.

The Duke of Orleans has just sent in fifteen more unfortunate persons, on whom the populace will exercise their fury.

The Abbe de Vermont is fled.

The Abbess of Montmartre has been brought to the Hotel de Ville, and accused of having concealed cannon, and other warlike stores, in her convent.

M. de la Fayette was regularly re-chosen General Commandant of the Paris militia on Wednesday last.

Many names of eminence have been proscribed, and the place mentioned where money was deposited for those who should apprehend them.

The King and Queen are at Versailles—scarce a nobleman or a gentleman openly attend them.

Five Princes of the Blood are already arrived at Brussels.

Every person of condition who can get from Paris, loses not a moment in his escape.

The public places have been opened for the benefit of those engaged in them, but not a person appeared at any of them.

Deputations from the Provinces are arriving every hour, which add to the confusion and tumult of the scene.—A scene in which the King seems to fit like a monarch of "shreds and patches," astonished at his own nothingness! degraded, dishonoured, and made a slave!

It is sufficient to say, "There goes a spy!" immediately to procure an execution.

Such is the horrid spectacle that presents itself! The Bastille has hardly one stone left upon another, as every one tries to destroy something of what they call the Sepulchre of their Liberties.

Necker is not yet returned; he had taken his route through Bruxelles and Frankfurt, to his native soil. His Lady, from the fatigue and anxiety, was left ill at Bruxelles—he proceeded.

The Bishop of Chartres had nearly fallen a victim to popular indignation. He supplicated his life, and was compelled to give up his Secretary, M. Thomassin, who was conveyed to prison.

The Mayor of Lille has suffered the fate of his Parisian Compeers, and is hanged.—Corn, in consequence, is now to be had in plenty in that neighbourhood, for he was accused and proved to be the monopolizer.

Every hour presents a scene of new tumult and added consternation.

The word "Spy!" is an immediate signal for murder. Whenever, therefore, a person passes, who has the misfortune to meet amongst the mob an enemy, the word "Spy!" is given, and he lives no longer to give offence.

Five persons were murdered in less than a quarter of an hour, in this most deliberate manner.

Yet in the midst of this desperation, which will undoubtedly lay the city in ashes and in blood, such is the respect they bear the English, and the name of our Constitution, that on a Gentleman appearing, attended by two Ladies, they immediately made a lane to let them pass, crying out "Vive la Liberte!"

L'Affable loses its power; and the most dignified of its members cease to be heard.

The King might consider this as the crisis of his fate. Were he in the least elevated—the people, perhaps, might, in dread of worse sufferance, again have recourse to him, and Fly from petty tyrants—to the Throne!

But he is so unpopular—they yet shew no such

The day the King was obliged to shew himself in Paris, an air of sadness was spread over his countenance; and sufficiently shewed, that in trusting himself to the unruly multitude, the confidence which he placed in them cost him much.

One of the rabble fired a pistol just as the King was passing by St Roch's, in Rue St Honore. It was not charged with either bullet or shot. His Majesty suddenly started at the report, and looked round him with great earnestness, to try if he could see whence, or by whom the pistol had been fired.

Just at the New Bridge, or Pont Neuf, his own guards (les Gardes Francois) who had deserted him, met his eye; they were drawn up in a hollow square, facing Rue de la Monnaie; instead of being confused at the sight of the Prince whom they had abandoned, and whose person they no longer had the honour to guard, they assumed a bullying and menacing air. They had, a little way—a head of the front line, not a few paces—a long apparatus for action, the King put his hand to his forehead; and, without looking any more at these base deserters, or heroic patriots, he was drawn by in his carriage.

When he alighted at Guildhall, all order was confounded.—Deputies, Electors, Nobles, King, and Mob, all entered pell-mell.

The King was seated on his Throne; but even there he was made to feel how little able he was to command respect, and how little disposed the heads of the city were to procure it him!

A drunken gunner got up to the throne, brandishing an enormous drawn blade. The man did not appear to mean harm; but the King appeared to apprehend it; and yet no one would ease his mind by turning the fellow out. He was at last pleased, of his own accord, to lay his sabre at his Majesty's feet, where the King seemed to be much better pleased to see it, than in the gunner's hands.

The Bastille, the most extraordinary place of confinement ever seen, is now nearly demolished. It is with the greatest difficulty the people can be kept at a distance. The eagerness to see the inside brings thousands to this spot from all parts of the country: The iron collars to surround the body, hands, and feet, found in the cells, are of the most extraordinary kind. In one of the cells, twelve feet under ground, it is said, an iron cage has been found, the weight supposed to be ten tons, and the bars three inches square, in which was a perfect human skeleton.

LONDON—JULY 29.

The Prince of Wales yesterday returned to Carlton House from Brighton.

Mr Pitt is much recovered from the gout, but not yet perfectly well.

It is the general opinion, that the tobacco bill will not be passed this session. The Lords lean much on the side of the trade, the fair part of which, by this bill, are made to pay for the faults of the other—and this, indeed, seems a strong objection to the Excise in all cases.

Yesterday the marriage of Mr Campbell to Lady Caroline Howard was celebrated. Some of the prints, in their zeal to make the parties happy—married them some time since!

Yesterday a Court of Common Council was held, to receive the report from the Committee lately appointed to enquire into the situation of this port as to corn, and whether it may be expedient to give a bounty on importation. But the Court agreed, that there was no necessity for a bounty, as the stock on hand was equal to former years.

Bread has again risen one whole Alize, or two pence in the peck loaf, to take place to-morrow. It is much to be hoped, that this will be the last, for the sake of the poor, who, with bread at 8 d. the quarter loaf, while meat and other articles are so dear, cannot but feel it heavily.

Monday, the purser of the East India Company's ship Carnatic, Captain John Corner, arrived at the India House with an account of that ship's safe arrival from China off the Isle of Wight. She left Canton the 27th of February, and sailed from St Helena the 27th of May last; her passage from that island has been unusually long. The passengers in the Carnatic are Lieut. Edgeworth, and Mr St Leger, of the Madras cavalry.

The Alfa, from England, arrived at Caen on the 8th of February.

The Carnatic parted company with the Depford, and General Coote, in the China seas; but those ships had not arrived at St Helena when the Carnatic sailed.

A duel was fought on Monday morning about four o'clock, between two young gentlemen, in the Surrey Tavern. One of them was killed on the spot; and the survivor, it is thought, is mortally wounded. What makes the circumstance still more melancholy, is, that the quarrel was the effect of intoxication.

On the 9th inst. died, on board the General Matthews, on his passage from the West Indies, Patrick Maxwell, Esq. Secretary to the island of Grenada.

A loan for the King of Sweden's own private use, to the amount of one million Sterling, is now raising in this country, which fills very fast. The amount is to be remitted to Stockholm as soon as completed.

The Duke d'Orleans has written an apology to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, for not being able to wait upon him at Brightelmstone this summer, as greivably to his engagement, and assigning the alarming state of the Gallic empire as the cause of the disappointment.

By letters received from Paris on Monday, we learn, that the mob proceeded to pull down the house of the Duc de Chatelet, and that the Marquis de la Fayette endeavoured to prevent it, but in vain.

Card from the Duc de Liancourt, President of the National Assembly, to the Gentlemen of the Permanent Committee.

Verfailles, July 20, 1789.
The Duc de Liancourt has the honour to inform the Gentlemen of the Permanent Committee of the city of Paris, that the Sieur Dufresne de St Leon, charged to carry M. Necker the letters of the King and the National Assembly, did not find him at Bruxelles, from which he took his departure on Wednesday last, and that he has followed him towards Frankfurt.

"The Duc de Liancourt (who has not yet laid the letter before the National Assembly, which gives him an account of the route of M. Necker), has the honour to apprise the Gentlemen of the Permanent Committee, in his own name, thinking that if the city of Paris were to remain ignorant of the cause, they might be alarmed at the continued absence of the Minister, who is, at this moment, the secret and the hope of the nation."

The King has sent a letter to the Marquis de la Fayette, "authorising him to keep such soldiers only, who had quitted their colours to join the Paris troops, before the receipt of this letter, unless they chose to return with a note from the Marquis, which would save them harmless; and granting leave to the French guards entering into the Paris militia, that their pay and food should be continued until arrangements had been made for their subsistence."

His Majesty declared, "That the four companies of guards which remained with him, he should keep to guard him, under his own care."

Brussels is the general asylum for those persons who have fled. The public rewards, the executions that have already happened, and the want of protection from the king, who, indeed, has not the power to give it, have driven all his most zealous friends from Versailles. The Compe d'Artois is fled to Nivelles near Bruxelles. His two sons the Ducs de Angouleme and Berry are at Bruxelles, with the Prince de Condé, the Duc de Bourbon, the Duc de Engien, and about twenty more of the nobility of France.

The proscriptions against particular persons extend every day, and strike terror among all ranks of people. Notwithstanding the public executions of Saturday, Paris is tolerably quiet; but the fear of what may still happen makes every one anxious to get out of the city.

The Dukes are in a state of rebellion from one end of France to the other. They seem no longer to consider allegiance to the King as a necessary part of their duty.

The garrison of Havre de Grace has surrendered its command to the burghers, and the King's regiments cantoned in Brittany have laid down their arms, and refused to obey the orders of their officers. In short, there is an end to all government and good order.

The regulation of having a militia of burghers extends through all the principal towns of the kingdom, and will shortly become general.

It would appear, from all accounts we can gather, that the Revolution is by no means so perfectly established as has been conjectured; and that the French King, should he continue to be ill-advised, will endeavour to make head against his people.

The retreating army have the utmost difficulty to subsist; every body both in town and country exerting themselves to distress these instruments of slavery, so general is the horror entertained against them.

The Marshal de Broglie had undertaken to reduce Paris in 15 days, and the King was to have set off for Metz in Lorraine, the day that the siege opened.—What a precipice has the Sovereign escaped!

The construction of the Bastille is so strong, that it will take many months to level it.

Nothing can be obtained from Major White, relative to the Bastille; the terrors of the place have either overcome his memory—or else he is "forbid to tell the secrets of the prison-house."

The famous Madame la Chevaliere D'Eon, who is a very shrewd politician, gives it as her opinion, that should the people persevere in being well armed, and well united, they will have nothing to dread; but that, on the other hand, should they relax in their measures, and be lulled into an acquiescent security, the worst of consequences may ensue to them.

It is said, there are upwards of eleven hundred and fifty thousand men, in favour of the people, in arms in France.

It is greatly to be lamented, that in the first moment of fury, an immense quantity of books, papers, archives, &c. of that gloomy Den of Despotism, were laid violent hands on, and destroyed, or carried off. I have seen several precious morsels in the hands of the captors; among others, many bitter publications, the obscene and political, against the Queen and the Count d'Artois, for which the authors and publishers have probably long since paid the forfeit of their lives.

heart load, however, was preserved, and carried to the Hotel de Ville, where Mr. Bailly, who knows the value of such monuments, will probably take care to put history with some of these delectable annals. Who knows but that some light may be thrown on the celebrated performance with the iron mask, who has long puzzled the ingenuity of historians.

The flame of Liberty is appearing in Spain; and we should have wondered if it had not; it is too active in itself to be longer dormant, and the example of the first branch of the House of Bourbon will be too powerful not to be followed. Many of the municipalities have made application to the Governors of the respective Provinces to establish their ancient Cortes or Assemblies. It may require years before the spirit becomes so general as to bring the people into action; but the spark is kindled, and the Court has taken the alarm. We have even heard that the King apprehends the old oath, binding him to assemble the Cortes, may be tendered to him at his Coronation, and that the ceremony has been delayed from this apprehension.

CORN MARKET.

July 27, 1789.
The weather having been very fine since last market-day, and our supply of wheat, this morning, pretty considerable, prices declined nearly as much as they advanced since Monday, and many runs remain unsold. We had very little barley or malt, which induced the Distillers to give us more money for both of good quality, and our Out-landers advanced this article again full sixpence per quarter. Small Beans are dearer; but Ticks and Pease are cheaper. Seed obtained 27 1/2 per cent. to Shippers. Our crushers offer only 25 1/2 per cent.

WIND AT DEAL, JULY 27. S.

EDINBURGH.

The Public will have observed, that an Act of Parliament has lately passed, by which all Newspapers published after this date are subjected to an additional duty of ONE HALFPENNY, and all Advertisements to an additional duty of SIXPENCE each. This imposition will not doubt be a very heavy burden on the Publishers, as it obliges them to employ a much greater capital than formerly; on which account the London printers have raised the price of their papers to fourpence each. The Publisher of the CARLETONIAN MERCURY, however, means to charge no more to his subscribers than the additional duty laid on, viz. ONE HALFPENNY on each Paper, and SIXPENCE on every Advertisement.

The Price, therefore, will in future be as follows, viz. A single paper, 3 d. — 21. 6s. per annum, when called for — 21. 9s. delivered in town — 21. 14s. per post.

As there is a clause in the Act which takes away the allowance formerly given of the stamps on unsold newspapers, it will be necessary that no more copies be printed than what are actually subscribed for. It is therefore requested, that all orders be for a term not less than three months, and that at least one week's notice may be given when a subscriber means to discontinue.

The clause prohibiting hawkers lending papers for hire, does not mean to prohibit any number of persons from agreeing to take a paper on their joint account.

On the 19th March last, was married at Peterburgh, Virginia, Dr. George Wilton of Stotencleugh, late of this city, to the amiable Miss Marianne Banister, daughter of the Hon. John Banister, Esq; late Member of Congress, and niece of the Hon. Theodorick Bane, Esq; present Member of Congress for Virginia.

Died here, Tuesday last, Isabella Campbell, wife to Mr. George Wood Ferguson.

On Tuesday, Sir Archibald Campbell, Knight of the Bath, and late Governor of Madras, arrived in town from London.

After the race on Thursday, mentioned in our last, an excellent hack-race commenced, which was gained by a horse belonging to Mr. Gibson of Millfield. There were four heats.

Yesterday, the Ladies subscription purse of fifty guineas, ran for, and won by Mr. Hamilton of Wilkies's colt, Newoyon, 1 1/2.

Duke of Hamilton's horse, Paragon, 2 2.

There were eight horses booked for this purse, but the above two only started.

This day, the purse for the beaten horses through the week will be run for, but not before this paper goes to press.

The stewards appointed for next year's races are, the Marquis of Lorn, the Earl of Ancrum, and Colonel Lennox.

The company attending the races this year have not been so numerous as usual, probably owing to the Calendonian Hunt being to be held at Edinburgh in October, when much company of fashion are expected in town.

Besides many others of inferior note.

Last week, Messrs. J. Monach and Son, of the Mercantile Academy, Glasgow, received the commission of Writing Masters for Scotland to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

Last week, a considerable quantity of smuggled leaf tobacco was seized in Glasgow, by Mr. Macdonald, acting supervisor. It was artfully packed up in boxes, and sealed, as if it had been goods for transportation.

Upon Tuesday the 21st instant, a remarkable water-spout was seen opposite to Inch-Keith, and took its direction towards the Galloway and Welter Weems; about an hour and an half after which there fell a considerable deal of rain upon the above villages and adjacent coast, which was accompanied with thunder and lightning.

We hear from Falkirk, that two of David Morrison's servants at Tophill, coming from Glasgow, on Wednesday last, on the road went from Camelon, running a race on their master's horses, one of the horses fell, and the rider was killed.

We hear, that Mr. James Clark, at the Reddock, parish of Polmont, keeps a fine breed of cows, one of which has had eight calves in the space of three years and one month, viz. four times twins.

POSTING DUTY.

On Wednesday last, was tried in the Court of Exchequer here, another cause with relation to the Posting Duty, which determines a point of very general concern. This, like the former mentioned in our paper of Saturday the 27th inst. came from Aberdeen, and was an information brought by his Majesty's Advocate General, against one Alexander Smith a horse-hirer there, for the statutory penalties for not taking out a License. The defence set up by Smith, consisted of two parts: the first, that his mode of hiring horses, not for actual Posting, but to go to certain places, distant sixteen or eighteen miles from Aberdeen, and to return the same day with the same person, was not such a hiring as subjected him to take out a License; the second, was a plea in equity, that he paid 10 s. per annum for each of his horses, under the Horse Duty Act, 24th Geo. III. cap. 31. and that he had continued to pay that duty down to the present time, from which he would have been exempted, had he taken out a License, for which he is only obliged to pay 5 s. To the first, it was answered on the part of the plaintiff, that the License is, by the express words of the statute, directed to be taken out by every person hiring horses by the mile or stage, and that every such hiring is, by the law, declared to be a hiring to travel post, subject to duty, and within the meaning and enactments of the statute. To the second it was answered, that had the hirer really taken out a License, as he ought to have done, on fleeing it to the proper officer for the Horse Duty, he would have been of course exempted from that duty; but he would have been liable, as by law he clearly was, to receive from his employer, and to account to the Lessee of the Posting Duty, for 1 s. d. per mile for each horse he hired; which duty, by his default, the Lessee, who pays a very high rent to government, had actually lost.

The Court were unanimously of opinion against both the defences set up by the defendant, and the Lord Chief Baron directed the jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff, which they accordingly did without going from the bar. His Lordship at the same time, in compassion to the defendant, who was said to be in poor circumstances, recommended to the Lord Advocate, not to insist for actual payment of the penalty, unless his Lordship, upon inquiry, found that he was one of any combination formed against the Lessee of this duty. His Lordship expressed a regret for the loss which the Lessee had suffered by such combination, which, he said, had forced such informations as the present to be brought for his relief. And we are informed, that unless full obedience is paid to the doctrines now clearly laid down by the different decisions of the Court on this law, the proper officers are resolved to prosecute, with the utmost severity, all offenders in future, whose fraud or obliquity may subject them to the penalties of the statute.

MR SHIELDS, Minister at Westruther, continues to Board Young Gentlemen, and to educate them in all the ordinary branches of Learning, at the rate of Twenty Guineas per annum.

The success of this undertaking has encouraged him to make an addition to his house, for the better accommodation of the boys entrusted to his care.

The situation of Westruther is very favourable to health. From its retirement, the youth have few avocations from their studies, and their morals (to which Mr Shields wishes to be particularly attentive, as in no danger of being corrupted by the contagion of bad example, so prevalent in great towns.

Pupils are taken in from seven to thirteen years of age, at the above-mentioned rate.

Persons desirous of farther information may apply to Professor Greenfield, Professor Jalsell, or Mr. Dickson, Bookbinder.

Letters addressed to Mr Shields may be sent by Kelfo or Lander.

ORPHAN HOSPITAL.

THE ANNIVERSARY SERMON for the Benefit of the Orphan Hospital, is to be preached by the Rev. Mr. GEORGE BARRE, in St. Andrew's Church, New Town, on Tuesday the 4th August, at 11 o'clock forenoon — after which the Orphans will Sing a Hymn of gratitude to their bountiful benefactors.

As the plan of the Hospital is now completed and ready for the reception of 50 more Orphans, so as to make up the number of 500 indigent children, nothing but the want of funds prevents the increasing thereof. But the Managers, trusting to the benevolence of the public, who have testified their regard to that pious institution, by many donations and legacies; at last election admitted, from numerous petitions of poor, but once respectable families, 41 Orphans, which is 25 more than the funds of the Hospital can maintain; this expense, with the many necessary improvements carried on in and about the house, render contributions at this time the more necessary.

It is therefore expected, that those who cannot attend the Anniversary Sermon, will lend their mite towards the support of 150 pining indigent Orphans, who have since August last, after school hours, when they learn reading, writing, arithmetic, music, and the principles of religion, performed with their own little hands, the following work, viz. The Girls have spun as much yarn as makes 500 yards of Linen Cloth, which they have made into shirts, &c. for the whole family; — they have made all their own gowns, petticoats, and other apparel; they make all the beds, clean the wards and whole house; assist in washing and dressing the linens, and serve by turns in the kitchen. — The youngest girls are employed in making lace, which is sold in the Hospital. — The boys have spun as much yarn as makes 430 yards woollen stuff to clothe the girls, and work coats to themselves. — As tailors, they have made and mended all their own clothes; as shoemakers, have made and mended all the Hospital shoes; and, as bookbinders, bound all their own books. The Boys and Girls have knit 300 pairs of stockings; and, when they are not at play without doors, to keep their young minds cheerful, they are encouraged to sing and dance to their own music.

The remarkable health of the children is an evidence of the proper economy and advantage of enlarging the Orphan Hospital. Those who wish to visit the house, will see how the happy objects of their benignity are employed, and will be convinced that a small donation or legacy cannot be more properly applied, to promote the great end of religion, and the good of society; and however elegant that Hospital now appears, as an ornament to the metropolis, the funds of that pious institution are not impaired by completing the plan.

LETTERS OF TOLLS — EDINBURGHSHIRE.
THE TOLLS and DUTIES payable to the Shire of Edinburgh, and collected at the Turnpike Gates and Bars following, viz. at Grange-loan and Heriot House in Leith, and at Gifford-loan, Niddry-mill, Cairn-town, and Deanburn Bridge in Dalkeith District, are to be set in Tack, by way of public roup, and that either jointly or separately, by the Trustees for putting in execution the turnpike acts for said shire, at their General Meeting, upon Monday the 10th of August next, at eleven o'clock forenoon, within the Old Judiciary Court-house, Edinburgh, and that for one, two, or three years, from and after the 15th day of August current, being the expiration of the present tack.

By a new Act of Parliament, the Tolls and Duties collected at the above Turnpike Gates and Bars are augmented one third, and many exemptions granted by former acts of Parliament are taken off.

The roups that are now to take place well deserve the attention of those whom it may suit to become tackmen, not only as there is reason to believe that the above tolls have been hitherto let under their value, but likewise on account of the rise of one third that is now to commence upon the tolls.

The Tolls and Duties to be collected at Craigmill Toll-bar in Slateford District, are to be exposed to roup at same time and place.

Those who intend to become tackmen of the tolls to be collected at one or more of the above mentioned Toll-bars may apply for particulars to Mr. Mitchellson, Nicolson's Street, where the articles and conditions of roup are to be seen.
